Fairfield Prep's Senior Service program combines service work with the academic study of moral issues. The academic component intends to introduce students to a number of contemporary ethical problems. By examining contemporary social issues, the program strives to awaken a critical sense in its students. To that end, students are required to serve those that are less advantaged than they are in some way.

“Love ought to manifest itself in deeds rather than in words.... love consists in a mutual sharing of goods... Hence, if one has knowledge, he shares it with the one who does not possess it; and so also if one has honors, or riches. Thus, one always gives to the other.”

— St. Ignatius of Loyola, The Spiritual Exercises
